Conclusion

The paintings drawn by children reflected their interest in the energy conservation activities and their concern about energy crises and climate change, and have effectively conveyed inspiring ideas in their impressive paintings. The vibrant designs, the confident depiction of the topic and remarkable composition seen in these paintings reflects clear understanding of the subject themes in the minds of these young children.

The interest in energy conservation that has been generated in the children and their parents as a result of this Painting Competition suggests that it is meeting its original objectiveness of enhancing awareness in this area. It is also now an instrumental activity in creating a mass awareness on the use of energy, particularly in the domestic sector.
